in sports indicate about trends in terms of bias and discrimination and the current degree of such biases. Looks at whether integration should always be taken as a sign of discrimination. Addresses the long-standing antagonism that seems to exist between the public and the police, drawing on studies of sports, law enforcement, and corruption. Uses sports examples to explain how unconstrained, poorly monitored behavior leads to bad decisions in and out of sports settings. Reflects on some of the complexities that arise regarding competitive balance and equality among sports teams. Explains how college sports provide instructive lessons on the world of not-for-profit firms and how valuations of the contributions of college athletes can be made in relatively simple ways. Shows how the power of sports can make a difference on a national scale in addressing problems or expressing common sentiments. Goff is Distinguished Professor in the Department of Economics with the Gordon Ford College of Business at Western Kentucky University. Index.

New Journals

Advances in Mathematical Finance and Applications
Published quarterly by Islamic Azad University, this print and online, open-access journal publishes original research and survey articles in all areas of mathematical finance. Volume 3, issue 3 (Summer 2018) contains eight papers that discuss investigating the effect of internal rates of return on cash recycling on abnormal returns of companies listed in the Tehran Stock Exchange; an empirical application addressing the impacts of financial structure on financial performance of banks listed in the Tehran Stock Exchange; studying the role of marketing intensity on the relation of financial leverage and firm function; the effects of investors’ behavior and management on stock returns—evidence from Iran; investigating the impact of the financial crisis on conservative accounting and transparency of banking information; hyperrational choice and economic behavior; financial statement comparability and the expected crash risk of stock prices; and a fuzzy goal programming model to the rolling performance-based budgeting by productivity approach in gas refineries in Iran. Visit http://amfa.ian-arak.ac.ir/ for more information. (ISSN 2538–5569; EISSN 2645–4610)

Athens Journal of Business and Economics
Published four times per year by the Athens Institute for Education and Research, this online, open-access journal explores all areas of business and economics including management, marketing, accounting, and finance. Volume 5, issue 1 (January 2019) contains four papers that discuss efficiency cuts in various taxation rates to foster economic growth in a framework of wage rigidity; optimal pricing of deposit insurance; spillover effects, in Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, from the European Central Bank’s unconventional monetary policies; and monetary policy transmission in the Eurozone. Visit https://www.athensjournals.gr/ajbe for more information. (EISSN 2241–794X)

Bulletin of Accounting and Finance Reviews
Published twice per year by DergiPark, this online, open-access, and Turkish and English-language journal promotes the development of global open access to scientific information and research in the fields of accounting and finance. Volume 1, issue 2 (October 2018) contains three Turkish-language papers and four papers in both Turkish and English. Papers with English abstracts discuss the determination of macroeconomic variables affecting commercial banks’ return on assets; return and volatility spillover between Islamic stock indexes—an application of multivariate VAR–EGARCH on developed and emerging markets; the accounting structure of the Treasury single institution account system and accounting for transactions carried out within the scope of the system; and factors affecting the preference for the financial consultancy profession in Izmir. Visit https://www.athensjournals.gr/ajbe for more information. (EISSN 2241–794X)

Canadian Economic Review
Published four times per year by the Ottawa School of Business and Economics, this electronically circulated, open-access, English and French-language journal provides an international forum for peer-reviewed papers, case studies, and reviews on the latest advancements and thinking in the field of economics. Volume 1, issue 1 contains five papers that discuss a smooth-transition approach to government size and economic growth in Greece; the economic impacts of climate change on selected Asian and African developing countries; empirical evidence from Nigeria on the interest rate–stock market performance nexus; a five-year-ahead bankruptcy prediction—the case of the Tehran Stock Exchange; and evidence from Pakistan on determinants of children’s health. Visit http://osbe.ca/research_corner.html for more information. (EISSN 2369–9620)

Econder International Academic Journal
Published twice per year by DergiPark, this online, open-access, English and Turkish-language